BELGIUM

In the field of unemployment insurance, accidents at work and occupational diseases, the provisions referred to in the 2015 annual report (reference year 2014) remain in force.

In general, during 2015, various changes in the fight against cross-border social security fraud were either targeted at particular sectors (e.g. the meat sector) or were designed to counter phenomena such as fictitious membership of the social security scheme for self-employed workers.

- Changes were made to the Social Penal Code (although not directly relating to the implementation of European coordinating Regulations (EC) No 883/2004 and (EC) No 987/2009), for example, by the Programme Act of 10 August 2015 (Ministrial Order of 18 August 2015), which entered into force on 28 August 2015. The purpose of the relevant section is to introduce an electronic registration system of workers who are employed to perform various activities in the meat sector. In that sector, the inspection services often face various difficulties relating to labour law: on the one hand, bogus self-employed workers and, on the other, the employment of casual workers. The aim of the measure is to require the attendance of all workers, whatever their status (employee, self-employed, posted worker) from the time they are active in a cutting plant or meat processing factory. Registering attendance can be achieved with various technical means, either at the workplace itself, via a local registration system, or remotely (e.g. from the subcontractor's headquarters or from a smartphone).
- The Programme Act of 10 August 2015 (Ministrial Order of 18 August 2015), which entered into force on 28 August 2015, amends Article 17a (1er(a)) of Royal Decree No 38 of 27 July 1967 governing the social security status of self-employed persons by doubling the fine payable in the event of fictitious membership (as a self-employed worker) to a social security scheme.

In the area of family benefits, the following national legislation relevant to preventing and combatting social security fraud and error within the framework of the Regulations is present:

BULGARIA

Bulgarian legislation does not provide definitions of fraud and error in the field of social security coordination. Bulgaria uses legal notions to define the terms 'fraud' and 'error'.

There is no national legislation relevant to preventing and combatting social security fraud and error within the framework of the Regulations in the field of family benefits.

Within the area of Criminal law, as a criminal offence, error and fraud are regulated by the Criminal Code. Whereas "Fraud" is defined as intentionally creating or keeping a false belief in order to acquire property/material benefit for himself or others and thus causes property/material damage, "factual error" is defined as ignorance of the factual circumstances that belong to the crime and excludes the idea /intention of this crime. The terms "fraud" and "error" are widely used in civil, especially in contract law.

CROATIA

As regards pension insurance and family benefits, neither the Pension Insurance Act, Act On Employment Mediation And Unemployment Rights nor the Children Allowance Act contains a definition of fraud and error.

As a criminal offence, fraud is regulated by the Criminal Act and represents the reason for the restitution of the proceedings prescribed by Article 123 of the General Administrative Proceedings Act which regulates action that the state, local and regional administrative bodies and legal entities with public authorities undertake within their legally prescribed scope, when acting in and deciding about the administrative matters.

For the Croatian Pension Insurance Institute (hereinafter referred as the CPII), fraud as a criminal act is a preliminary issue, decided upon by the competent courts and determined based on the legally binding court ruling.

The most case files implying the risk of fraud and error refer to the payment of pensions to the beneficiaries abroad. Considering difficulties to communicate the fact of death or any other fact influencing the entitlement, there are cases of undue payments, subsequently resulting with uncollectible recovery of undue payments. Also, there are cases of furnishing of false documents from the part of the beneficiary (forged certificates of education, false certificates of life and false employment certificates), i.e., the beneficiaries fail to file the requested documentation or do not report changes affecting the acquired entitlement (failure to submit the death certificate or failure to provide information about death, about cessation of regular education or commencement of employment that is followed by the suspension of benefit payments).

The risk increases even more in case of the family benefits i.e. children allowance granting procedure. Currently, data exchange is performed by submission of hard copies; the stated proceedings are therefore unjustifiably long-lasting and result in overlapping of benefits and undue payments.

GERMANY

As regards the area of activities of the Headquarters of the Bundesagentur für Arbeit, it must be noted that there are no specific legal regulations as referred to in the question and such are not necessary, as fraud is generally covered by criminal law.

However, there is a requirement pursuant to Section 397 SGB III on automated data cross-checks, which are aimed at uncovering fraudulent claims.

From the point of view of the Deutsche Gesetzliche Unfallversicherung, Section 150(3) SGB VI must be noted.

From the point of view of the Deutsche Rentenversicherung, the following requirements must be noted.

- a) Section 263(1) StGB
- b) Section 266a StGB
- c) Section 50 SGB X
- d) Section 111 SGB IV
- e) Section 24 SGB IV
- f) Section 119(3) No 1 SGB VI

National legislation relevant to preventing and combatting social security fraud and error within the framework of the Regulations	Name	Section 250(10) of the Social Welfare Consolidation Act 2005 (No. 26 of 2005)
	Type	Extension of powers of social welfare inspectors to investigate claims for Irish social security payments and the payment of Irish social security contributions to cover the investigation of claims for social security payments made in another State with which Ireland has a bilateral or reciprocal social security arrangement.  While not specific to combatting social security fraud and error within the framework of the EU Regulations, this provision enables, inter alia, the investigation of claims made in accordance with the EU Regulations, where fraud and error is suspected.
	Date of publication in official journal of your country	The provisions of 250(10) of the Social Welfare Consolidation Act 2005 commenced on 1 December 2005. However, these provisions were originally introduced in section 28(b) of the Social Welfare Act 1994 (No. 4 of 1994), which commenced on 31 March 1994.

Definition of fraud contained in this legislation or measure	There is no specific definition of fraud provided for the purposes of this specific measure. Nor is the term fraud explicitly defined for the purposes of the Social Welfare Consolidation Act 2005. However, fraud is understood to be deliberate false representation of a matter of fact —whether by words or by conduct, by concealment of what should have been disclosed —in order to obtain or receive social security payments or to avoid obligations to pay contributions. Fraud cases arise mainly on foot of false declarations by customers concerning their employment, income or family status.
Definition of error contained in this legislation or measure	There is no specific definition of error provided for the purposes of this specific measure. Nor is the term error explicitly defined for the purposes of the Social Welfare Consolidation Act 2005. However, error is understood as follows to have occurred in the following contexts – Customer error – where incorrect information is provided without fraudulent intentions. Departmental error - where due to a mistake, an act or omission by staff, which the customer did not cause or materially contribute to and which the customer could not at the time he or she received payment or paid contributions reasonably have been expected to be aware of.
Sanctions for fraud contained in this legislation or measure	Failure to cooperate with an investigation by a social welfare inspector is an offence in accordance with section 250(6) of the Social Welfare Consolidation Act 2005. The sanctions for an offence under this section are set out in section 257 of the Social Welfare Consolidation Act 2005. A person who is guilty of an offence under section 250 is liable – (a) on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding €1,500 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months, or to both, or (b) on conviction on indictment, to a fine not exceeding €13,000 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 3 years, or both.
Sanctions for error contained in this legislation or measure	There are no criminal or administrative sanctions for error, apart from the power to recover any overpayments involved. Where, following a review of a claim in payment, it is confirmed that the customer had been receiving a payment to which he or she was not entitled, or was receiving a payment at a higher rate

		than entitled to, a revised decision on the entitlement is made. This revised decision can result in the assessment of an overpayment. Overpayments can be recovered from any ongoing social security entitlements that the person may have or, where the person is in employment, by deduction from his or her earnings.

ITALY

Italy reported that their national legislation does not provide clear definitions. The concept of fraud can be broadly understood as 'an intentional act or omission constituting an administrative or criminal offence in order to obtain benefits not due or circumvent the payment of contributions', while the concept of error relates to the lack of or incorrect communication/use of data by recipients or by the administration without fraudulent intent.

Cases of fraud may come under various administrative or criminal offences (fraud, forgery of documents etc). They are therefore punished in accordance with criminal law or by means of administrative sanctions, which may include the recovery of undue benefits or the payment of contributions not paid.

Article 20 of Law No 102/2009, entitled "Combating fraud in cases of civil disability" introduced important innovations in the process for recognising entitlement to disability, blindness, deafness and similar benefits.

The main procedural innovations are set out below:

- as of 1 January 2010, applications must be submitted to the National Institute of Social Security (NISS) electronically;
- the ASL (local health body) committees, the instrumental agents of the Regions, have been supplemented by an NISS doctor;
- the medical examinations are validated by the NISS Forensic Medical Commission and are subject to subsequent verification with a review of the documentation or, in some cases, a new visit;
- the NISS carries out general checks on the records drawn up annually by the ASL Medical Commission;
- the NISS carries out any exceptional checks that are necessary in order to ascertain permanent disability, following a plan set out in the rules or on the initiative of the Institute.
- by Legislative Decree no. 148 of 14 September 2015 and no. 185 of September 24, 2016, a National Network of Employment Services Policies, consisting of public or private entities, including INPS, Incentive Incentives and Income Support Services, and the National Agency for Employment Active Labor Policy (ANPAL) - established from 1 January 2016 - with the role of network coordination. The provisions for the application of sanctioning measures in cases of failure to submit unemployment benefit recipients to the National Employment Centers were first introduced and subsequently reinforced, which ultimately results in the decline of the perception of performance. Provisions on the application of sanctions in cases where recipients of unemployment benefits do not show up at the national centres, which can ultimately entail loss of the right to benefits, were introduced and later strengthened. In this regard there are still issues already highlighted in the previous questionnaires, referring to situations in which unemployed people in receipt of Italian unemployment benefit go to other EU Member States or third countries in search of work, without first notifying the competent Italian institution. This requirement for an unemployed person who moves to another State in search of work, is explicitly laid down in Article 55(1) of Regulation No 987/2009, which sets out the provisions for the application of Article 64 of the basic Regulation. The introduction of the new sanctioning system, as set out in the legislation mentioned above, will go some way towards addressing issues with regard to recipients of unemployment benefit from the INPS. Nevertheless, agreements on closer cooperation with other states would be useful for reducing or eliminating these problems.

LITHUANIA

There is no definition of fraud and error provided by Lithuanian national legislation in the field of social security. There is also no separate legislation for fraud and error cases within the framework of the coordination Regulations.

In practice the concept of fraud and error is understood as situations where incorrect information or documents are provided, when a person does not inform the competent institution(s) about changes of the circumstances or about employment or residence in another Member State, or as a mistake of a specialist of the competent institution when granting a benefit, determining the legislation applicable or issuing an SED or E form. In our opinion the main difference between fraud and error is the fact of a fraudulent intention or fraudulent behaviour in order to receive a social security benefit or to avoid an obligation to pay social security contributions.

Responsibility, penalties and possible sanctions for providing incorrect information or for the falsification of documents are regulated by social insurance, administrative and criminal legislation.

LUXEMBOURG

There is no concrete definition of the terms “Error” and “Fraud” in our national legislation about social security, but some legal rules are important in the context of preventing and combating social security fraud and errors

General provisions

- Social security code

Article 408bis

Article 408bis of the Social Security Code require the social security institutions to determine the rules of governance to be applied in the performance of their missions and towards stakeholders, in which the policy to combat abuse and fraud plays a central role.

Articles 428 and 429

The CCSS (Centre commun de la sécurité sociale) is responsible to sanction the failure to pay social security contributions in due time.

Employers and insured persons are required to pay contributions, fines and other fees claimed from them by the Centre, within ten days of the issue of the contribution account statements, notwithstanding any dispute relating to the basis of assessment.

Contributions not paid on the due date are subject to interest on arrears, to be collected with the same guarantees as the principal.

Article 437 of the social security code

If it is established that the beneficiary of a pension or benefit in cash is diverting or could divert it from its natural purpose, or that the interests of his beneficiaries are being prejudiced, the judge may designate a third party to use the said pension or indemnity for the purposes for which it was intended.

Article 447

Possibility to pronounce administrative fines (not exceeding seven hundred and fifty euros) against insured people with faulty or fraudulent conduct towards the social security institutions.

Article 451

Penal sanctions integrated in the social security legislation in order to punish those who intentionally get (imprisonment from one month to five years and a fine from two hundred and fifty-one euros to fifteen thousand euros) or try to get (imprisonment from eight days to two years and a fine from two hundred and fifty-one euros to ten thousand euros) undue benefits from a social security institution.

- Criminal procedure code

Article 23

Obligation for public workers to inform the prosecutor of acts that may constitute a crime or an offence and that have come to their knowledge in the discharge of their duties. In a general manner, this article also constitutes the legal basis for the filing of a criminal complaint.

- Criminal code

Reference should be made to Section III, Articles 496 to 504 concerning fraud and deception.

Under the terms of these provisions, will be punished by imprisonment of four months to five years and a fine of 251 euros to 30. 000 euros, any person who knowingly makes a false or incomplete declaration with a view to obtaining or retaining a grant, indemnity or other allowance which is payable by the State, another legal person governed by public law or an international institution. Shall be punished with the same penalty any person who receives a grant, indemnity or other allowance to which he is not entitled or anyone who knowingly uses it for purposes other than those for which it was originally granted. Anyone who accepts or keeps it knowing that he is not entitled to it, shall be punished by imprisonment from eight days to two years and a fine from 500 euros to 5,000 euros:

Reference should also be made to Articles 194 to 197 concerning forgery in authentic and public records, in commercial or bank records and in private records.

These articles provide for a prison sentence of five to ten years for persons who have committed forgery in genuine and public records, and all persons who have committed forgery in commercial, banking or private records, including electronic private acts,

- either by forged signatures,
- either by counterfeiting or alteration of writings or signatures,
- either by making agreements, provisions, obligations or releases, or by inserting them afterwards in deeds,
- either by addition or alteration of clauses, declarations or facts that these acts were intended to receive and record.

Also, anyone who has made use of the forgery shall be punished as if he were the author of the forgery.

Specific provisions

- Sickness insurance (CNS):

Article 73 of the social security code

This article provides a description of the proceeding before the "Commission de surveillance de la sécurité sociale" in charge of deciding whether a file will be brought before the "Conseil arbitral de la sécurité sociale" or not (only providers of healthcare)

Article 73bis of the social security code

This article provides a description of the sanctions that can be imposed to healthcare providers by the "Conseil arbitral de la sécurité sociale".

Article 158bis of the Statutes of the CNS

This article refers directly to Article 447 of the social security code and specifies it in the context of sickness insurance.

Article 170 of the Statutes of the CNS provides that “No addition, entry, deletion, modification or supplement of data may be made by the insured or by a third party in the sections of the certificate of incapacity for work reserved for the doctor, on pain of the penalties provided for by the laws, regulations and articles of association and of the invalidity of the certificate.

Any addition, entry, deletion, modification or supplement of the data referred to in paragraph 5 of the this article for a period of less than or equal to three days of incapacity for work is punishable by a fine of two hundred euros (200,- €) imposed by the President of the Caisse nationale de santé or his delegate, and the certificate will be null and void.

Any addition, entry, deletion, modification or supplement to the data referred to in paragraph 5 of the of this article relating to more than three days of incapacity for work is punishable by a fine of five hundred euros (€500) imposed by the President of the Caisse nationale de or his delegate, and the certificate will be null and void.

Any repeat offence, regardless of the length of time involved, is punishable by a fine of seven hundred and fifty euros (€750) imposed by the President of the Caisse nationale de santé or his delegate, and the certificate will be declared null and void.”

- Accidents at work and occupational diseases insurance (AAA):

Article 127 of the social security code

Under the terms of this article, the benefits provided for in articles 99 and 100, pensions and compensation for non-property damage are not paid or are suspended

- as long as the insured person evades medical examination without good reason
- as long as the insured fails without good reason to undergo the medical examinations provided for in article L-552.2§2 of the labour code
- as long as the insured does not provide all the information, documents and evidence requested by the AAAA.

This article also provides that pensions and compensation for physiological and amenity damage awarded or paid as a result of a clerical error may only be withdrawn or reduced as from the month following that in which the corrective decisions is notified. Benefits awarded or paid unduly will be recovered if the beneficiary caused them to be awarded by alleging incorrect facts or concealing important facts, or if he failed to report such facts after award.

- Family benefits (CAE):

Article 312 of the social security code

This article refers directly to Article 496 of the criminal code and specifies it in the context of family benefits and more specifically targets those who fraudulently induced the CAE to provide a benefit that was not due or was only partly due.

It also provides for an administrative sanction independent of the criminal aspect up to the amount of the sums improperly received, without prejudice to the recovery of such amounts.

Finally, this article specifically refers to the failure to declare the change of residence to the competent municipal administration(s) or the fact of appropriating a health record or opening it without the knowledge of the holder or his/her legal representative with the intention of violating its secrecy.

- Unemployment benefits (ADEM):

Article L.527-4 of the labour code

This article provides for a penalty for any person who fraudulently induced (imprisonment for one to six months and/or a fine of 500 to 5,000 euros) or attempted to induce (imprisonment from eight days to three months and/or a fine of 251 to 2,000 euros or one of these penalties only) ADEM to provide unemployment benefits which were not due.

- Pension insurance (CNAP):

Article 211 of the social security code

Under the terms of this article, any pension shall be withdrawn if the conditions that gave rise to it fail.

If the elements of calculation change or if it is found that it was granted as a result of a material error, the pension is increased, reduced or withdrawn. Benefits that have been overpaid may be recovered.

Benefits must be repaid if the insured person or pensioner has caused them to be awarded by alleging inaccurate facts or by concealing important facts or if he has failed to report such facts after they have been awarded.

Amounts unduly received are returned without prejudice to any legal proceedings. They may also be deducted from the pension or arrears still due.

This article also states that persons receiving a pension granted on account of invalidity are required to undergo the examinations prescribed by the "Contrôle médical de la sécurité sociale" (social security medical inspectorate), failing which the pension will be withdrawn.

MALTA

Article 117 of the Social Security Act (Chapter 318 of the Laws of Malta) defines the instances which are considered as fraud and are conducive to legal actions against a beneficiary as follows:

- knowingly or recklessly making any false statement or false representation; or
- producing or furnishing, or causing or knowingly allowing to be produced or furnished, any document or information which one knows to be false in a material particular; or
- fraudulently failing or omitting to report to the Director, before receiving any payment, any change of circumstances which has or may have a material bearing on the amount, or mode of giving such payment.

Moreover, Article 102(1)(i) of the same Act which concerns the 'Repayment of benefit, pension, allowance or assistance improperly received' states that where an 'overpayment occurs as a result of the non-disclosure or misinterpretation of a material fact (whether the non-disclosure or misinterpretation was or was not fraudulent)' a higher repayment rate is applied.

As mentioned in Article 117 of the Social Security Act, criminal prosecution and administrative sanctions are provided for in cases which result to be fraudulent. However, prior to resorting to such provisions, the Department of Social Security strives, in primis, to recover the sums unduly paid. Recovery measures are prescribed as per Article 102 of the Social Security Act, whereby 'any person who has received any sum by way of benefit, pension, allowance or assistance under this Act to which he or she was not entitled in terms of the provisions of this Act shall be liable to repay to the Director the sum so received by him or her, and the Director shall, without prejudice to any other right competent to him or her at law, recover such sum by means of deductions from any benefit, pension, allowance or assistance to which he or she thereafter becomes entitled.' In cross-border cases, the recovery provisions under Regulation (EC) No 883/2004 are applied. Criminal prosecution and administrative sanctions are applied only in exceptional cases.

THE NETHERLANDS

The Netherlands reported that it should be noted that under their national administrative law, no distinction is made between categories of 'fraud' and 'error'. Both apply to the same type of rule-violation according to their national legislation.

Social security benefits must be repaid in cases of fraud, higher fines can be imposed and the benefit can be temporarily suspended. Entrepreneurs will risk, in addition to the higher fines, a preventive shutdown of their business. Municipalities are obliged to implement the sanctions. A legal basis has been created to exchange A1 Forms between the Social Insurance Bank (competent institution) and the Inspection services.

	Any additional information	With the Act, the Dutch government intends to contribute to the prevention of unfair competition between enterprises, strengthen the legal position of workers and to pay workers in accordance with laws and regulations, collective agreements or agreements with individual contracts. Abuse of the willingness of labour, for example, from other Member States of the European Union (EU), European Economic Area (EEA) and Switzerland, to work for a lower wage than the applicable minimum wage leads to undesirable competition. This is undesirable for workers because it leads to displacement, underpayment or even exploitation. It is also undesirable for bona fide employers and entrepreneurs because there is no level playing field for them if they will have to compete with parties that reduce labour costs in an improper manner and in some cases make use of sham constructions Finally, the government finds it undesirable that workers are replaced by workers who accept a low wage and make rely on the social security system to supplement their income. This puts the Dutch social security system under pressure. Moreover, if social security benefits are being paid, sham constructions will often lead to a payment to the 'wrong' Member State in which the costs are lower.

POLAND

The National Health Fund (Narodowy Fundusz Zdrowia, NFZ) of Poland reported that in cases when the NFZ bears undue costs of the healthcare benefits in kind provided in another Member State to persons who were not entitled to benefits financed by the Polish health insurance institution and to persons who were entitled to healthcare benefits but did not fulfil the conditions for reimbursement under provisions for the coordination of the social security systems, it is entitled for reimbursement of the costs of the healthcare under Article 50 Section 16 of the Act on healthcare services financed from public funds.<sup>1</sup> The procedure for pursuing recourse claims arising under coordination provisions is stipulated in recovery procedure and NFZ internal guidelines. The procedure is based on the provisions of the Civil Code.<sup>2</sup>

The Foreign Pensions Department of the Social Insurance Institution (Zakład Ubezpieczeń Społecznych, Departament Rent Zagranicznych, ZUS DRZ) stated that, as described in the Questionnaire for the reference year 2014, the Polish legislation does not lay down one formal definition of fraud and error. The provisions define only what fraud and error have legal effects and what conditions are to be met to invoke them. In the Questionnaire for the reference year 2014 the concept of fraud and error was described from the view of the Polish civil and criminal law theory and how it is understood in concern to a case to which the provisions on the coordination of security systems apply.

It appears to be a common understanding of these two in the legal tradition, however does not represent a direct national legislation definitions relevant to preventing and combatting social security fraud and error within the framework of Regulations (EC) Nos 883/2004 and 987/2009 on the coordination of social security systems, therefore is not indicated in Annex I.

Further, the legal definition of error and fraud is not laid down in specific provisions of social security, either. However, there are provisions regulating situations (and their effects), in which act or omission takes place in effect of fraud or error. With respect to social security cash benefits, in the context of error or fraud, it may happen that benefit is overpaid by the institution or unduly paid to a non-eligible person. There is a general definition of overpayment and unduly collected benefits resulting in administrative sanctions. These elements are indicated in Annex I. Both may result from either fraud or error understood as described in the Questionnaire for the reference year 2014 and never officially defined nor classified. A qualified type of undue benefits is e.g. undue payment on a basis of false testimony or documents. Moreover, under the Polish law, based on specific provisions, it is also possible, in separate proceedings, to take a criminal route (in case of a crime committed) or a civil route (compensation proceedings), since certain kinds of frauds may be qualified as offences. Because of wide range of possible combinations of facts and legal provisions in Annex I we only referred to the respective legal basis.

The said understanding of the concept of frauds and errors is close to the definitions provided for in “Guidelines for the National Contact Point nominated under AC Decision H5” however, there are some elements that should be added to these definitions. Amendments were suggested in the Questionnaire for the reference Year 2014 and that position upheld during the current discussions within the H5 NCP Platform.

It was also suggested as beneficial to reflect on the justification of having such dedicated definitions implemented in the Regulation (EC) No 883/2004 to provide them by means of one directly applicable legal act in all the Member States. The latter was partially reflected in the European Commission’s proposal of 13.12.2016 (COM <2016> 815 final; 2016/0397 <COD>) concerning amendment of Regulations (EC) Nos 883/2004 and 987/2009.

In 2017 and 2018, the legal status has not changed, and also no activities on the EU forum were undertaken in this regard.

Brief summary of the relevant provisions (in English)	The payment of sickness benefit is withheld if the right to benefit ceases or it turns out that such a right did not exist. If the provision is unduly collected by the fault of the insured or as a result of the circumstances referred to in the Act - the amounts paid shall be deducted from the benefits payable to the insured current and other social security benefits or download in the provisions on administrative enforcement proceedings. In contrast, to the unduly collected maternity allowance rules on unduly collected benefits from the Act of pensions from the Social Insurance Fund apply. Moreover, if the inability to work of the person's insured justifying the payment of the sickness allowance or rehabilitation benefit was caused by another person in effect of his/her intentional offence or petty offence, the Social Insurance Institution or remitter of contributions may seek from the offender the return of the sickness allowance or rehabilitation benefit paid. Therefore, the Social Insurance Institution and remitter of contributions have a claim for redress from the person causing the damage (the damage being sickness allowance or rehabilitation benefit paid due to inability to work). The commitment of intentional offence or petty offence should be confirmed by a final court judgement.

PORTUGAL

Although there is no specific legal rule in Portugal that contains a definition of “fraud and/or error” in the context of the coordination of social security schemes, the national legislation provides for a set of sanctions in a number of situations classified as fraud or error in the field of social security. •

Social security framework law (Law No. 4/2007, of 16 January)

Article 80

It establishes that failing to comply with legal obligations relating, in particular, to the registration in the system, the affiliation in the schemes and the fulfilment of contributory obligations, as well as procedures that, by action or omission, aim at obtaining undue benefits, may constitute criminal offences, which are defined by law.

- General scheme on tax offences (Law No. 15/2001 of 5 June)

Articles 106, 103 and 104 –

Under the terms of these provisions it is considered fraud against social security system the behaviour of employers, self-employed persons and beneficiaries aimed at the non-liquidation, delivery or payment, in whole or in part, or the undue receipt, in whole or in part, of social security benefits with the intention of obtaining for themselves or for another person illegitimate advantage of more than EUR 7500. The Fraud against social security is considered a criminal offence punishable by imprisonment of up to three years or a fine of up to 360 days or a term of imprisonment of between one and five years for natural persons and a fine of 240 to 1200 days for legal persons in case of qualified fraud (accumulation of circumstances which led to the fraud).

It is considered also a crime, under the same scheme:

- The “tax scam” – article 87 – a person who, by means of false declarations, falsification or fixing of a tax-relevant document or other fraudulent means, determines the tax administration or social security administration to carry out financial duties resulting in enrichment of the agent or a third party shall be punished by imprisonment of up to three years or a fine of up to 360 days;
- The “frustration of claims” – article 88 - who, knowing that he/she has to pay taxes already fixed/in the process of liquidation or amount in debt to social security institutions, disposes of, damage or conceals, causes the assets to disappear or encumbrance with the intention of thereby frustrating in whole or in part the tax credit is punishable by imprisonment of one to two years or a fine of up to 240 days;
- “Abuse of trust against social security” – article 107 - Employers who, having deducted from the amount of remuneration due to employees and members of the governing bodies the amount of contributions legally owed by them, do not pay it, in whole or in part, to social security institutions, are punished by imprisonment of up to three years or a fine of up to 360 days;
- The Code of Contributory Schemes (Law No 110/2009 of 16 September 2009)

This regulation establishes a set of administrative offences within the scope of registration/affiliation in the schemes or the respective benefits.

The following shall constitute infringements within the scope of affiliation in the schemes (articles 22, 29, 36, 40, 42, 155, 229-231):

- False declarations or the use of any other means resulting in affiliation in a social security scheme without the legally required conditions being met;

- Misrepresentation or use of any other means resulting in the undue exemption from the obligation to contribute or the application of an undue contributory scheme in respect of both, the tax base and the contribution rates;
- False declarations or the adoption of procedures, by act or omission, aimed at obtaining undue benefits;
- Failure or delay in communicating the admission of workers;
- Failure in communicating the admission of a worker receiving unemployment or sickness benefits;
- Omission of mandatory communications relating to the Employee – modification of elements relating to identification, including those relating to establishments, commencement, suspension or cessation of activity;
- The non inclusion of an employee in the pay statement;
- Failure or delay in the payment of contributions by the employers;
- Failure or delay in the payment of contributions by the self-employed or the contracting entities;
- The omission of any other element that must be included in the remuneration declaration, in accordance with the regulatory legislation, constitutes a minor offence;
- The accumulation of benefits with the exercise of gainful activity;
- The absence of a declaration or other legally required documents, not specifically penalised.
- Legal scheme of undue payment of social security benefits (Decree Law No.133/88, of 20 april)

Article 2

Are considered induly paid the benefits:

- Paid without compliance with the eligibility conditions, even if the verification of the respective non-compliance results from a subsequent judicial decision;
- In a value greater than that resulting from the legally established calculation rules and to the extent of the excess;
- After the respective award conditions have ceased;
- Paid to a non-eligible third person.

Article 3

In the event that the undue payment of benefits is the result of changes in the conditions for granting them, the knowledge of which by the social security institutions depends on the information to be provided by the persons concerned, the obligation to refund relates to all amounts unduly paid, irrespective of the period of time for which they were granted.

	Scope of the legislation (criminal, administrative, mixed, ...)	Criminal law
	Definition of fraud contained in this legislation or measure	The Act does not refer to "fraud" or "error". The criminal act consists of submitting incorrect information or neglecting to report information in violation of obligations according to law or statutes, and in so doing creating a risk of a financial benefit or a financial contribution being paid out in error or in excess of the correct amount.

Sanctions for fraud contained in this legislation or measure	Fines or imprisonment, depending on the gravity of the offence.
Sanctions for error contained in this legislation or measure	See answer above.
Brief summary of the relevant provisions (in English)	Under the Act, a person who submits incorrect information, or who neglects to report altered circumstances that he or she is obliged to report under laws or statutes, and in so doing creates a risk of a financial benefit or a financial contribution being paid out in error or in excess of the correct amount from the Swedish Social Insurance Agency, the Swedish Pensions Agency, the Swedish Board of Student Finance (CSN), the Swedish Migration Agency, the Swedish Public Employment Service, the municipalities or unemployment insurance funds, shall be convicted of a benefit offence. "Financial benefit" refers to contributions, remuneration and loans for personal purposes that are paid to a private individual. "Financial contribution" refers to contributions, benefits and remunerations that are intended for a private individual but are paid to an entity other than that individual. The benefit offence can be minor, normal or major. If a person lacks intent, but commits the described offence out of gross negligence, the person shall be convicted of a negligent benefit offence. If the offense is deemed to be less serious than a minor offense, the individual will not be held responsible.

	Brief summary of the relevant provisions (in English)	Article 87 classifies the obtaining of undue benefits as an offence. The same applies in case of omission to pay contribution.
	Information on the assessment of the impact/effectiveness of this legislation or measure (if available)	Notwithstanding the similarity between the legislation on old-age and survivors' benefits (AVS) and on invalidity benefits (AI), neither the legal mandate nor the means are comparable, especially when juxtaposing the law on AVS with Articles 59 and 5 of the law on AI. The same applies regarding the formats for reporting results.
	Any additional information	Given that there is no single notion of 'fraud' , we need to carefully analyse the observed or reported facts in the context of the articles of the Swiss Criminal Code (e.g. do they fall under the titles for fraud or falsification , see Articles 146 and 252 of the Criminal Code)
